

(上接A51版)

Table with multiple columns containing company names, codes, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, likely representing different categories of companies or funds. Each row contains detailed information such as the company name, its stock code, and various financial metrics.