

(上接A19版)

Table with multiple columns containing company names, addresses, and financial data. The table is organized into several vertical sections, each starting with a header row. The data includes various types of companies and their associated financial metrics.